 - 7) If you could give advice to your past self in your last year, what would you tell your past self to prepare for and really be grateful for?

POST-INTERVIEW NOTES

What are the highlights/ key takeaways from your interview? What new questions come up for you after the interview? Do this right after your interview so it is fresh in your mind.

INTERVIEW TOOLS:

What are some interview tools you could use to help guide your interviews (reference the readings and try to be consistent with your types of interviews - i.e. users vs experts).

Consumer!!

- Card Sort: have interviewees sort what they value from most to least to get a sense of what is important to them at the end of college, does that change after they graduate?
Hobbies, Community, Achievement, Time, Fitness/Health
- Conversation Starters: open with questions about general community online and in-person to capture strong sentiments and trends
Walk me through your day? What does community look like to you? How do you spend your time?
- Resource Flow: interviewee explains where they earn/spend their money to highlight trends in where people invest their time and energy - do people pay for community?
